MEET our Teacher

Danielle Theroulde attended Bishop Anstey High School and completed her A levels at St. George's College. Her passion for languages led her to major in Spanish at the University of the West Indies, where she also studied French, French Creole, and Portuguese. She later pursued a Master's Degree in International Relations, which sparked her love for global history.

With over twenty-five years of experience, she has worked in education both at the ministerial level and in the classroom. At the Ministry of Science, Technology, and Tertiary Education, she served as Programme Coordinator at the Distance Learning Secretariat. She has also taught young professionals and secondary school students a range of subjects, including English as a second language, Spanish, Travel and Tourism, Geography, and History. Currently, at Rosewood-Trimont College, she teaches History and Geography. Teaching is incredibly fulfilling for her, as it allows her to share her passion for knowledge while witnessing the success of her students, which she finds immensely rewarding.
